...JULY 3, 1885. FRIDAY

To Mr. Justice Matthews

In an official statement of the debt funded under the RIDDLEBERGER bill is the following significant item, to which we call the particular attention of Mr. Justice MATTHEWS, who has given it as his opinion that a suit against a State officer is not a suit against the State. We quote : " Of 10-40 coupons, due January, 1883, and subsequent, under mandamus United States Circuit Court, $50,-044.50." Funded under a mandamus issued by a judge of the United States Circuit Court !

Here is the sum of fifty thousand dollars charged against the State of Virginia by order of a Federal judge, and yet we are gravely told that the order does not violate the eleventh amendment to the Federal Constitution. Who will have to pay this sum of fifty thousand dollars? The Auditor or Tressurer? No, indeed. It will be paid, if at all, by the State of Virginia. Who ordered it to be paid? A Fede ral judge. In the absence of such order, the State would never have owed that debt-would never have issued a new bond for that amount unless the coupons had previously been proved to be genuine, as the law of this Commonwealth requires them to be proved.

The question arises, Does Virginia owe that debt now? Ought she to pay the bonds issued under a mandamus issued in violation of the Constitution of the United States? Ought her officers not to enter upon record the facts in the case, and refuse always and forever to pay the bonds? There is no pretence set up on the part of Mr. Justice MATTHEWS or of any of his concurring colleagues that Virginia can be made to pay these bonds at maturity. All persons admit that she can repudiate them at will, and that there exists no power in any department of the Federal Government to compel her to pay them. Mr. MATTHEWS'S judge-made law extends only to coupons. Repudiate the bonds, if you choose, says he, but you shall not repudiate the coupons. Let us quote once more the eleventh amendment. It is as follows: "The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another State or by citizens or subjects of any foreign State."

In contempt of that provision of the Constitution-in violation not simply of its spirit, but of its letter-the United States Circuit Court for this circuit has by mandamus compelled Virginia to assume a debt of fifty thousand dollars which she had refused to assume, and forced her to issue her bonds for that amount. Is there a man living who will deny that the State was a party to that suit? Read the eleventh amendment in the light of that fiftythousand dollar debt put upon the State by mandamus, and then read what Chief-Justice WAITE and the other three dissenting Justices said of such outrages upon the State of Virginia as the one we are now considering. The Chief Justice, speaking through Mr.

Justice BRADLEY, said : "Moreover, the eleventh amendmen is not intended, as it were a jingle of words, to be slurred over by cunning subtleties and artificial methods of interpretation, so as to give it a literal compliance, without Tegarding its substantial meaning or purpose. It is a grave and solemn condition exacted by the sovereign States for the purpose of purpose or purpose of the purpose of t the sovereign States for the purpose of preserving and vindicating their sovereign right to deal with their creditors and others propounding claims against them according to their own views of what may be required by public faith and the necessities of the body politic. We have no right, if we were disp We have no right, if we were disposed, to fritter away the substance of this solemn stipulation by a neat and skilful manipulation of its words. We are bound to give it its full and substantial meaning and effect. All this litigation in reference to Virginia bonds is an attempt through the medium of the Federal courts to coerce the State of Virginia into the fulfilment of her consists into the fulfilment of her connia into the fulfilment of her con-

The facts prove that Chief-Justice WAITE was right. The United States Circuit Court for this circuit is attempting "to coerce the State of Virginia into the fulfilment of her contracts." Nay, worse, that court has reached its hand into her Capitol and taken thence State bonds and put these bonds into the hands of suitors in that court. If that is not a violation of the eleventh endment, then that amendment cannot be violated.

We repeat that we trust that the State ers will mark and number the bonds ned under the orders of the United States Circuit Court, and that all such bonds will be repudiated out and out. There is no other way in which these trages can be stopped. Just let it go

We have written as if there were nly $50,000 of RIDDI PRESCER! fully issued-that is, issued under -under mandamus of a Federal court ; but the fact is that there have been bonds thus issued to the amount of three or four hundred thousand dollars. Let all such be branded and repudiated.

"Wise D. liberation." Under the above heading the Dan-ville Register makes the following excellent remarks:

"The Dispatch suggests that when the Dispatch suggests that when the State Convention meets and organizes it should adjourn until next day. This suggestion is put forth in order to allow the delegates from the various sections of the State to compare notes, ascertain who is the strongest man for Governor, and also complete, as far as possible, the State ticket.

That we should deliberate well before making the nominations admits of fore making the nominations admits of no doubt on the mind of any practical Democrat; that we should have our purest, wisest, and most practical men as nominees is also a fact. But how can this be done after the manufacture of the manufactur as nominees is also a fact. But how can this be done, after the maturest de-liberation, unless every delegate goes to the Convention not to represent any individual or locality, but the State at

What only is sound judgment es tisl in making our ticket, but that judgment must proceed from and be sustained by a patriotism that recognizes the good of the State, the maintenance of sound principles, and the absolute defeat of the salt-and-pepper party led by Mahone, the demagogue.
"There are times in all large bodies when a shrewd advocate of a certain individual may successfully introduce the whoop-up system and have his fa-vorite nominated by acclamation, but we take it for granted that it is not the intention of the people to send delegates to Richmond for any such unwise and doubtful purpose. On the contrary, we believe that the working Democrats of Virginia understand the importance of maintaining Democratic rule in the State, and therefore expect the delegates to act with great caution and wise deliberation.

"The plan proposed by the Dispatch may accomplish the end for which it is proposed, and if it shall result in giving to the voters of the State a ticket upon which they can all unite—a ticket that will harmonize all divergent interests it will more than repay the delegates and the party for the additional time it will take for practical and discreet deberation. An independent convention of un pledged delegates will accomplish the end which our Danville contemporary and all other good and true Democrats have in view. We would have the Convention meet and organize and listen to all the nominating speeches on the 29th instant, but listen to them under a rule providing that no vote shall be taken until the 30th. No harm can result from such a course to any aspirant who ought to be nominated. It is only those aspirants whose records cannot bear close scrutiny that will object to the adoption of measures calculated to secure the nomination of the most available man. The Convention must be a convention of Democrats-not an assemblage of the personal friends and admirers of anybody. It must, if the object of its meeting is to be attained, consult the welfare of the Democratic party and not the wishes or interests of any man.

How can we secure the nomination of "our purest, wisest, and most practi- that it will go to seed before 1888. men," " unless every delegate goes to the Convention, not to represent any individual or locality, but the State at large?"

Home Rule for Ireland. Give Ireland a local Legislature of her own, such as all the States of this Union have, and she would cause Engbe disbanded or sent to India or Egypt. dict of the people for several months. There would be no danger whatever in such an experiment. Mr. CHAMBERLAIN said in a recent speech to an English audience :

"The pacification of Ireland at this moment dees, I believe, depend upon the concession to Ireland of the right to govern itself in the matter of its purely domestic business."
"I say the time has come to reform altogether the absurd and irritating anachronism which is known as Dublin Castle, to sweep away altogether these alien boards of foreign officials, and to substitute for them a genuine Irish administration of purely Irish business." Ireland needs nothing more.

Sir CHARLES DILKE said, with reference to Ireland, in his Cobden-dinner speech:

"We have now at last, thirty-five years later, given her a better representative system; for it was but very slightly tinkered in 1867, so far as imslightly tinkered in 1867, so far as imperial matters are concerned. But Ireland is still, to our weakness, a camp of British troops. Let us complete our work by giving her that better representation, too, in local matters, an Irish control of things of Irish concern."

Canada is as loyal as England itself. She has her own (Dominion) Parliament. Trust Ireland to manage her own local affairs, and she would be equally loyal to the Crown. This experiment is the one thing which the British Government has never tried.

The Old Story.

A Washington special telegram to the Baltimore American says:

One of the messengers in the Internal-Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department, an old Maryland colored man, got an inkling, about three weeks ago, of the raid that was made last week on the messengerships in that bureau, and began to cast about for some one to help him keep his head on his shoulders. He happened to think that parkans his old mass. to think that perhaps his old mas-ter, now a member of the Maryland State Senate, might be able and willing to help him, so he took a day off and went over to see him. The result was that the Senator came back with his old servant, explained to the Commissioner that he and that man had been raised together, and that he would dearly like to see him keep his place. He did keep it. He is one of the few old messengers in that bureau whose faces are still to be seen there.

That is an old story-so old, in fact, as to be hardly worthy of repetition. Nearly every man in the South who experience somewhat similar to that of to the Federal Constitution is ever to be paid, and the United States Circuit may be never so "loil" to the RepubliCourt will not be asked again for its can party—may be, in fact, a leader of Cap" Cigarette.

get into trouble and he immediately turns to old master; and if it is possible old master helps him. If old master happens to have been gathered to his fathers, the negro goes to one of the young masters. If the Maryland State Senator alluded to is a Democrat, as is probably the case, the chances are that the old negro's "whole tribe and generation" voted against him when he was a candidate for the Senate. We repeat, such incidents are common, yet southern oppression of the negro is still the burden of the Republican party's campaign song.

Good Thrusts.

A stalwart Republican journal denies that its party now seeks to "revive the rebel issue in politics," but claims that it is "thrust upon their attention by a Democratic Administration," by the appointment of ex-rebels to office.

This puts the Boston Herald into an interrogating mood again, and it makes the following good thrusts :

"Why did not the Republicans disfranchise and disqualify the southern whites if they wished to render them ineligible to office? And why is it worse for the Democrats to appoint some of the best of the ex-Confederates than it was for the Republicans to appoint some of the worst? The scare is all gone from the old 'rebel yell.'"

WELLS AND PUMPS .- The City Solicitor of Philadelphia has given it as his opinion that if the Board of Health has positive and convincing proof that the pumps and wells within the built-up districts of the city of Philadelphia get their supply from a body of water which is obnoxious and injurious to the health of the citizens, it has the power to abate such nuisance and order such wells to be filled up.

He adds : Before the Board can make such general order, however, it must be convinced that the water in all such pumps and wells is dangerous to the health of the citizens. Without this proof they can abate the nuisances only where they exist in special cases.

BAKER P. LEE, Esq.-We take it for granted that the Administration will provide a place for BAKER P. LEE, Esq., who has been so unceremoniously disappointed of the office he thought he had in his hands. Expecting the Administration to do this act of justice, we have said nothing as to the revocation of Major LEE's appointment to be a collector of customs. We might censure the Administration for its course towards both Mr. KEILEY and Major LEE, but we prefer to hope that both will be cared for.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette says that Mr. CONKLING "as an alleged lawyer accepted Democratic money to maintain under the forms of law by his personal influence the fraudulent advantages of that party."

Is not that charge against Mr. CONK-LING similar to the one which Mr. GREENER brings against Judge FORA-KER? And is it not as good against FORAKER as against CONKLING?

CHALLENGED TO FIGHT. Mr. John Johns Calls Out Major Yell All About a Low Case.
(Baltimore American.)

While the people in general condemn the "field of honor" as a place of set-the "Beld of nonor" as a piace of set-tling grievances and disagreements, yet from certain developments which have come to light in Towson it is certain hat advocates and lovers of the duel still exist. Certain papers were filed a few days ago in the Orphans' Court at Towson relating to matters in the celebrated Johns will case. Like many papers of the kind, it said some not very agreeable things of the opposing side. Mr. John Johns, who is interested in the case, took ex eptions to some of the statements, and de-clared that they reflected seriously upon the character of his wife and other relatives. The counsel for the caveatees-opponents of Mr. Johns-are Messrs. John I. Yellott, Brown & Brune, I. Nevett Steele, and Mr. A. W. Machen. On Tuesday each one of these gentlemen received a stinging letter from Mr. Johns, calling them to account for their conduct. The letter received by Major Yellot, however, was different from the other four, and contained a formal challenge to a duel. It demanded the satisfaction which those who have certain notions about honor declare one gentleman must give to another. The challenge to Major Yellot, which is quite brief, covering one side of a sheet of letter-paper, states, in substance, that Mr. Yellott, in filing a caveat in the Orphans' Court, over his signature, had charged Mrs. Johns, his wife, and Mrs. Beatrice Merryman Black with fraud and conspiracy, and in order to obtain satisfaction he challenges Major Yellott. Mr. Johns in his challenge names Robert M. Newton as his friend, and asks Mr. Yellott to name his friend to arrange matters. As duels are of very rare occurrence now-a-days, a reporter of the American called on Major Yellott at his residence at Towson in order to obtain all the data, such as place, time, and weapons-in regard to the duel. The Major was found at his residence, surrounded by his family, and in his pleasant greeting to the re-porter there was not the least indication of gore. In fact, a nest annex, with modern conveniences, which Major Yellott is building to his residence, would indicate that he hopes to spend many years on this mundane sphere, challenges to the contrary notwith-standing. Mrs. Yellott wore a pleasant smile, and did not present the appearance of a lady whose husband is about to leave his body on the field.

When Major Yellott was asked by the reporter if he intends to reply to or accept the challenge of Mr. John Johns he appeared very surprised that it was known that he had received the challenge. Though reluctant at first to speak of the matter, the Major said that e had received the challenge from Mr. Johns, and, upon being requested by the reporter, allowed him to read it, the substance of which is given above. He treated the matter very lightly. Major Yellott further stated that Mr. Johns had written very insulting letters to the other counsel engaged in the Major Yellott explained that a deed conveying certain property of the Johns estate to Mrs. Black and others had been produced after the recent will case had been decided, and Mrs. Black afterward transferred her right to Johns. The counsel of the other side, in filing the paper in the case, had followed the usual form of legal practice, and it is to some of the state ments contained therein at which Mr. Johns felt aggrieved, Major Yellott treated the challenge as a joke, and left the impression on the reporter that he would pay no attention whatever to the challenge.

As already stated, Mr. Johns sent a letter to each of the counsel, and the language in some of them is anything but elegant. Major Yellott is the only one whom he challenges to a duel. He ntimates in his letters to the others that he will not challenge them, because he regards them as too cowardly In his letter to Mr. F. W. Brune Mr. Johns also charges him with declaring over his signature that Mrs. Johns, Mrs. Black, and other of his kinswomen, obtained possession of the deed by fraud and conspiracy. He accuses Mr. Brune of being the cause of his losing his property: charges him with "packing juries' and "coaching witnesses," and calls him cowardly lying, &c., &c., and intimates that it would be of no avail to ask such a man to fight, as he is too cowardly. In his letter to Mr. Brune Mr. Johns states that he will be at Towson on Thursday (to-day). A case of replevin against Mr. Johns is assigned for to-day, when he is expected to be present. One of the counsel stated that the gentlemen who received the insulting letters are considering the advisability of suing Mr. Johns for using the mails for improper purposes. It is stated that a son of one of the lawyers who received one of the letters was very strongly inclined to go after Mr. Johns with a rawhide, but was advised not to do so, as it would give too much publicity to the matter.

The Right Spirit.

The tone and temper of the Richmond Dispatch regarding State Democratic nominations merits commendation. Referring to eminent members of the party at the capital, it has this to say : "We do not mention the good Democrats of this city because there are any discontented ones among them, nor be-cause even one man among them expects to be a candidate for any one of the high offices we have mentioned. On the contrary, we hear of no such desire on the part of any of our fellow-citi-

That paragraph presents the line of duty in brief but pointed form. The campaign in Virginia should be won or lost on the broad basis of principles, not men. Personal ambition, party service, and local jealousy must be utterly banished from the State Convention, or else those who yield to such considerations will be responsible if Democratic discomfiture results .- Norfolk Virginian.

The Great Artesian Well. The Artesian well which Mr. E. Wil-kinson has just bored at the fine new residence he is building on Fourth street is by far the best we ever saw. It is 175 feet deep, and contains a pipe one and a half inches in diameter, through which flows 1,800 gallens of pure, clear, cool water every hour. Experiments proved that this well would force the water high enough to supply the whole house just water-works do in sities. This well has attracted a great deal of attention, and its capacity for over 40,000 gallons of pure water every twenty-four hours indicates to what source our city fathers should look for the much-needed water supply of this town. A few such wells would give the whole town all the water needed for drinking purposes or for fire.

Mr. Wilkinson is positive 175 to 200 feet is about as deep as it is necessary to bore in order to reach this flow of water anywhere on West Point east of Fourteenth. Immediately after this well was completed he bored one

TO THE DESIGNATION OF THE STATE for Mr. P. H. Adams, which is equally as good, and no deeper.

We hope the Council will provide three or four of these wells for the town. There is abundant proof that the water is purer and healthier than that derived from our shallow wells; and this fact, considering the small comparative cost of the wells, ought to induce them to follow this gestion. Will not some member of the Council start this question Mon-day next? We understand that it will only cost a small sum to deepen the present town well to a sufficient depth to obtain a flow of 1,800 gal-lons of water per hour, and we hope, just in order that the value of these wells may be fully appreciated by the Council and the people, that an appro-priation will be made at the next meeting of the Council. We feel sure the that our people will be so much pleased and benefited that it will be found important and practicable to have them the town, not only on account of their value for good health and sanitary effects, but to serve as a protection

There will doubtless be a great many candidates for the nomination for Governor before the Democratic Convention. And each man will have his strong personal friends. But we hope that the delegates will go to Richmond not with a determination to stick to their favorite to the last, and vote for him without regard to the will of the majority. We all cannot have our favorites nominated, so we must yield often to the will of others. Let us have the best and strongest

Get your forces in fighting trim so that you can poll every vote, and this can be done only by hard work, and the work no cessary cannot be done in a week or month, but it takes time. So begin at once, so that when the campaign begins in earnest the Democrats will be ready for the contest.
